DETAILED ACTION

Declaration under 37 CFR 1.132

The declaration under 37 CFR 1.132 filed 2/23/09 is insufficient to overcome the rejection of claims 1-45 based upon Arakawa et al. as set forth in the last Office action because: It include(s) statements which amount to an affirmation that the claimed subject matter functions as it was intended to function. This is not relevant to the issue of nonobviousness of the claimed subject matter and provides no objective evidence thereof. See MPEP § 716.

In view of the foregoing, when all of the evidence is considered, the totality of the rebuttal evidence of nonobviousness fails to outweigh the evidence of obviousness.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-45 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Arakawa et al. (USPN 4,027,134) in view of Haskett et al. (USPN 4,469,654).

Arakawa et al. discloses an electrode for edm. The electrode is tungsten based including Cu 15 to 40% and ZrO₂ 0.5 to 10%. In addition, Y₂O₃ and/or ThO₂ may be used. Powder particles are below 325 US standard mesh (less than 45 microns). The powders are mixed, sifted, molded and sintered.

It is the position of the examiner that if the particles are touching, then the interparticle spacing is met since the limitations require less than interparticle spacing.

Arakawa et al. does not teach the presence of nickel (optional) or specific micron sizes.

Haskett et al. discloses an edm electrode containing mainly tungsten and copper. Nickel may be used in the electrode. Table II shows particles sizes which are less than one micron.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have particles sizes of less than one micron as taught by Haskett et al. in the Arakawa et al. electrode because this minimizes distortional changes.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use nickel (optionally) as taught by Haskett et al. in the Arakawa et al. electrode because of the wetting (binding/bonding) properties of nickel, cobalt or iron.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
